Maharaja college Ara (Bihar)

Maharaja College, Ara is situated south ramna road ara . The college is located in the centre of Ara Town on 10 acres of land, a herbal garden, and well-equipped social science facilities, laboratories, playground, and a language and computer lab. The college becomes constituent unit of Magadh University, Bodh Gaya, Bihar on 1st February 1976. Later on, Veer Kunwar Singh University was formed after the bifurcation of Magadh University in October 1992 with headquarters at Ara. The college/university is recognized under the 2(f) and 12(b) of the UGC regulation and NAAC B grade accreditation .It is quite evident that the Maharaja College is much older than the present Veer Kunwar Singh University Ara . Presently it is running postgraduate and undergraduate course of Arts, social science and science. It is also running B.C.A., Biotech and Nalanda Open University Study Centre
